For everyone who cares about Faversham

Faversham is one of a kind. A friendly, fascinating town with a colourful and surprisingly significant history, which over the years has fought successfully to retain its distinctive character.

Leading that fight for over half a century has been the Faversham Society – one of Britain's very first civic societies and one of the most enduring, with what we believe to be the largest membership per head of population. People who know Faversham care about Faversham. If you're one of them, please join us.

The Faversham Society continues to campaign to sustain its unique character and heritage and carry it forward for future generations. We celebrate our heritage with a Heritage Centre, now an accredited museum, a visitor information centre with local gifts, a second-hand bookshop where you will find some gems, talks and walks and a range of year-round events. Independent and apolitical, the Society is run by an enthusiastic band of volunteers, and every penny raised goes to fund its work for Faversham. We have no paid staff.

There are perks, too. As a member, you get a lively and highly informative monthly newsletter (emailed to you every month or you can collect a printed copy from the VIC or have one posted to you), free access to our museum, library and archives, and free or discounted access to events.

Come and join us! The more members we have, the stronger we can be.

You can be as involved as you wish to be: simply support the Society with your membership; make your voice heard in the debate about the future of Faversham; join our history or archaeology groups; or become a volunteer – it's up to you.
